Helping The Animals

Dear Local Animal Shelter owners,

I have good news for you. I have a few resolutions to end the overpopulation in animal shelters. Here are three resolutions to end your problems.

Spay and Neuter. This process will have big help. Why, because if you do so, then it will prevent animals from reproducing and once the numbers go down, there is more space in the animal shelter.

Engaging the public. Engaging the public is the most powerful effect. This is because when you engage the public and speak out, more people will be adopting and then there will be more space in the shelter. Then there's a win-win!

The last, but certainly not least reason, foster homes. Foster homes is a great way to have more space in the animal shelters, and people adopt more pets. I can almost guarantee that both the people and the animals will be content.

Now after these three resolutions, does that want you to be joyful. It makes me joyful. Yay. No more killing the animals. So I hope all of you make the correct decision and try these three resolutions!!

Sincerely,
Local 5th Grader, Andrea
